COVERAGE OF THE WEEK OF EVENTS OF THE THIRTY SECOND MEETING OF THE SECRETARIAT OF THE PACIFIC REGIONAL ENVIRONMENT PROGRAMME

Message from Mr Sefanaia Nawadra,
Director General of SPREP

Bula vinaka,

Congratulations to our SPREP Membership and partners as we have closed our thirty-second SPREP Meeting of Officials in Samoa. We thank all who were involved in our endeavour that spanned a Partnership Dialogue, Meeting of Officials and the Waigani and Noumea Convention COP Meetings. Hosted in the beautiful Samoa as the backdrop, our week of Meetings heralded our journey ahead, and shone a light on the joint work undertaken with our Members and partners.

On a personal note I am honoured by the confidence and regard of our members in allowing me to lead SPREP for another term. We at the Secretariat look forward to this continued voyage with you.

SPREP-hosted Emma Luke Regional Earth Observation Centre launched in Samoa

The legacy of a regional geospatial pioneer, who actively advocated for Earth Observation, environmental conservation, and climate resilience will live on to make a difference in the lives of Pacific communities, with the launch of the Emma Luke Regional Earth Observation Centre (ELEOC) in Vailima, Samoa. Housed at the headquarters of SPREP, the ELEOC honours the memory of the late Ms Emma Luke, who championed the role of Pacific countries in leading earth observation conversations and interventions for the Pacific.

Pacific climate advocacy highlighted at Thirty Second SPREP Meeting

Officials attending the Thirty Second SPREP Meeting today reflected on their journey on the “fight of our lives”, the fight against climate change, during a side event held on the third and final day in Apia.

A big part of that journey has been the strategic efforts that have been undertaken by the SPREP, its Member countries, and partners to amplify the Pacific’s voice, especially during the UNFCCC COPs.

All Sea Turtles in the Pacific Threatened with Extinction, Report Reveals

Alarm bells were ringing as the 32nd SPREP Meeting came to an end, with the shocking revelation that all sea turtles in the Pacific are threatened with extinction. This major analysis of the risk of extinction to sea turtles in Oceania was conducted by SPREP through the Pacific European Union Marine Partnership (PEUMP) By-catch and Integrated Ecosystems Management (BIEM) Pacific Project.

Guidelines for Greening Events: How the Pacific is Leading Sustainable Event Innovation

In the Pacific, from bustling conferences to thrilling sporting competitions, organisers are increasingly embracing sustainability as a core principle, not just a checkbox. The urgency is clear. Plastic pollution, poor waste management, and rising carbon emissions threaten the very environments that make the Pacific so unique. With every challenge comes opportunity. Events, regardless of size or type, offer a powerful platform to inspire change and model responsible behaviour for thousands of attendees.

Strengthening the Noumea Convention to protect the Pacific's natural resources and environment

The SPREP, members and partners continue to collaborate to strengthen the Noumea Convention as the major multilateral umbrella agreement in the Pacific region for the protection of natural resources and the environment. At the convening of the 18th COP Meeting to the Noumea Convention in Apia, the Chair of the Meeting, Mr Bryan Star, Director of Nauru's DEMA, said the gathering in Samoa is a critical opportunity to strengthen the Noumea Convention to assist Pacific communities at the forefront of the impacts of the triple planetary crises.
